

ABSTRACTION

The purpose of the thesis was to produce concrete results in the field of education, particularly to provide English language learning more interesting for vocational students, improve morale learn some vital lessons the students, and as a motivation for the students to learn English to make the application of Mobile Learning that includes English material into Android applications. The method used is the method of analysis and design method in which the method of analysis, such as data collection stage which of these stages as the author analyzes the stages to design an application that had been expected at the top. The results achieved are the learners can access learning materials English language by using android smartphone, which means that learners can access learning materials English it wherever and whenever they are without having to open open, as long as the smartphone androidt ersebut connected to the Internet. The conclusion is that these applications the process of learning English is now not only focus only on the books, but also can be accessed online learners simply through smartphoneandroid.

Keywords: android, mobile learning, learning English, online